Cold Weather Diminishes Attendance—Mrs. E. L. Haynes Speaks—Modest Sum Realized on Evening

The lecture and dance sponsored by the Bassano Boy Scout troop last Friday night in a drive for funds was poorly attended, though a profit was made on the evening's venture.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sterling Haynes, director of dramatics in the department of extension, University of Alberta, gave a concise and interesting address on dramatics and its relation to the new course of study for the high schools.

The dance which followed Mrs. Haynes' address was enjoyed by all and the modest sum realized on the modest department in a creditable manner.

May God forbid our saying on this page the things that merely please. We would be humble in our opinions; we would be considerate of the opinions of others; but we would not be mindful of the immediate laws of cause and effect; for therein lies the wisdom of the ages.

A GREAT WRITER PASSES

One of the most delightful writers was T. B. Robertson of the editorial staff of The Winnipeg Free Press, who died a few days ago. His writings revealed a discernment, a depth of feeling and a command of English excelled by few newspaper men in the English-speaking world.

Professor Osborne, of Winnipeg, says Robertson measured up in some respects to masters of English like Milton, Jeremy Taylor and Burke. Other authorities pay ample tribute to this brilliant man who has now gone to his reward.

Robertson was self-trained. By trade a printer, he never undertook serious writing until well along in years. Yet his wide readings and his capacity of absorption carried him to the peak of the writing profession.

J. W. Daffoe, outstanding Canadian editor, was similarly self-educated. So was the late Sir John Willison, for a decade the ranking Canadian newspaper editor. These men occupied their spare time reading the choicest literature. They did not waste a minute on chaff.

With all the wealth of literature available today, and with the educational field of radio rapidly widening, there is no excuse for people to remain uneducated.

YOUNGSTOWN PLAINDEALER SUSPENSES

The Youngstown Plaindealer, after faithfully serving that district for some twenty-five years, has suspended publication and the printing plant has been removed to Drumheller, where a third newspaper is being started.

Twenty-five years ago Youngstown was a budding town with bright hopes for the future. The homesteading boom was then at its peak and the district of which that town was a center was studded with new farm houses and hundreds of people vibrant with happy prospects.

Searing droughts from year to year with good crops too far in between blighted hopes and homes and lives. Slowly at first but later in larger numbers settlers pulled up stakes and left for greener fields.

The gradual depopulation of the Youngstown district resulted in dwindling business. The Plaindealer, a good weekly newspaper, stayed on the job and did its best to restore courage and hope. But the task eventually became impossible and the inevitable end has now occurred.

The publisher, E. G. Quick, has rendered splendid service over a long time—the best years of a life's span—and deserves credit for the valiant way he has stuck to his guns.

PROSPECTS FOR A GREAT REIGN

What lies ahead of this young, clean-shaven king Edward VIII of Britain and all the empire.

Not his the somnolent glories of the great Victorian era, the swift diplomacy of alignments and re-alignments of the days of Edward VII, the fearful years of the reign of George the Beloved.

Edward VIII faces new times, new ordeals and faint, new hopes. A new Britain may arise and new, vast impulses sweep the great empire of which he is the titular head.

Britain, the homeland, is experiencing the pains of a re-birth. A young, vigorous generation is arising, eager and anxious to grapple with the great problems of the days.

A year or two may see a revival of throbbing courage in Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

Other parts of the great empire, smaller dots of red on the map of the world, are ready and willing to take their part in the burden of new great adventures.

The world will advance. It has always recovered from depression and defeat, and arisen to greater things.

Even now forces are at work indicating that a revival may not be far away. It may take longer to reach us here in Western Canada, but when the current of the world flood it eventually penetrates into still reaches far away.

May Edward-VIII see his empire under a happy era. May his reign be peaceful and prosperous so that it will be long remembered in the history of Britain and the empire.

A WASTING RESOURCE

The prodigious wastefulness of North Americans is almost proverbial. In fact it is very nearly criminal.

In the United States there are extensive areas of land from which, in 100 years, over 92 per cent of the original forest cover has been stripped.

Canada was once fairly well covered with forests, save for the southern portion of the great prairie provinces.

Today there is but one third of the original forest growth left standing in the domain; 1,150,000 square miles of forests where once there were 3½ million square miles.

The accessible Canadian forests at the present time consist of not much more than 308,000 square miles of merchantable timber. This is being depleted at the annual rate of 3 billion board feet of lumber, to say nothing of damage from forest fires, insects and disease.

Unless conservation methods are applied our lumber resources will have disappeared in a generation or so.

Our timber resources, once thought inexhaustible, are on the verge of depletion. The industries built upon this natural resource are liable to run out of raw material before many years have passed.

And if anyone wants to calculate the effect of the destruction of the forests on agriculture an example is furnished by China. Alternate floods and droughts have precipitated one famine after another in that land once so fertile and so capable of sustaining human beings.

The fruitful areas of the United States are partially due to the cutting down of forests, resulting in quick run-offs during springtime.

A nation of wasters will not be called blessed by their descendants.

LEARN FROM OTHERS

Are you so confident that your opinions are right and your judgments sound that you won't listen to the opinions of others?

If you were more willing to listen you might have learned enough to make you a great success in life.

You can think of men who have listened to you. They said very little and let you do most of the talking.

They were getting what they could out of your experience that would be of use to them and they listen forward.

Too busy listening, these men of progress, to tell you much.

They would not think of relying on themselves entirely.

They seek to get the point of view and the slant of others.

The wise man takes the best from many minds, in conversation, reading and study.

The wise man is glad to have suggestions and often he finds that study of different ideas enables him to evolve something better.

THE LIFE BLOOD OF BUSINESS

Advertising is the lifeblood of business. So one of the most hopeful harbingers of all is the continent-wide pickup in trade and industrial advertising.

The people of the United States and Canada are just commencing to rebuild, retol and modernize obsolete industrial equipment in preparation for a flood of "demands" from multitudes who have done without things for a long time.

So businesses big and little are planning to gain what portion of the market that they can, and advertising is the means mostly depended upon.

General Motors will spend more than ten million dollars in advertising their great array of choice cars during 1935.

Ford and Chrysler won't be far behind. Procter & Gamble will spend $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 to advertise soap; Reynolds Tobacco about the same amount; Standard Brands won't be far behind.

Campbell Soups have already planned for a $3,500,000 advertising campaign; Bristol & Myers, $2,600,000; General Foods, $2,250,000.

This is just a start in a long list of expanding advertisers. The keen manufacturer and salesman realize that advertising pays them golden dividends.

A STAGGERING COST

The cost of the world war, according to estimates made recently by experts, was $337,846,189,657. America's share of that cost amounted to $41,765,000,000. The total cost of the war could have provided $2,500 cottages on 6-acre plots of land costing $100 an acre for every family in Great Britain, America, Canada, Germany, France, Belgium and Russia. With what the United States spent in half a year during the war, an automobile and a tractor could be bought for every one of our 6,500,000 farms, with $600,000,000 left for good roads.—Railway Carmen's Journal.

Ten Minutes

Scotch Philosopher

As usual, the annual meeting of our school district was a great success. That is to say, in a peaceful way.

Besides the trustees, one lone taxpayer appeared to carry on the affairs of the district. However, our school chairman has a great idea for next year.

He proposes to stage a prizefight for the men and a teaparty for the ladies.

Won't that fetch 'em out?

Although the highbrow musicians are now frowning on that peculiar dance, "The Music Goes Round and Around," it's alright for a change.

The lads and lassies sing it in chorus on the way to school, and although we don't know where the danged thing begins or ends, we decided to try it on the cows.

So, as you know, I said to make old bosie give up some milk.

Don't follow suit, men; it doesn't pay. All went well until the high notes centered on "Ho, ho, ho" and it comes out there were attempted.

Then a perfectly gentle little dame reached out. Up went the pall and the former hit the bedding.

Henceforth it will be "Annie Laurie" and "Comin' Through the Rye."

But just the same, "The Music Goes Round and Around," etc., is a grand melody.

The Boston Herald discusses a very important item in the following lighthearted way:

"Someday a woman looks in the mirror to be sure her hat isn't on straight."

The following line reached us today and it is passed on to you with the hope someone will find a chuckle in it.

It is centered around a modern Tam o' Shanter who went to celebrate the birthday of Scott's bard.

Along in the wee sma' hours he will heard the car pass the door and proceed a considerable distance away. This rather puzzled her as the garage is located close to the house.

Then out of the night came loud hammerings and demands. Throwing on a robe she took a flashlight and set forth to investigate. It took the poor girl ten minutes to convince her befuddled hubby he wasn't near the house.

So blundered was our comrade by his super-jax he had gone to the barn thinking it was home.

Yes, that was going the limit alright.

In a recent issue of a well-known agricultural magazine, we read that if farmers are going to get out of the hole, they must practice thrift in a more thorough fashion than they are now doing.

When men, we've got down to one shirt and two socks of different colors.

What more can we do except save these precious garments for next winter?

Yeah. All the poor farmers get these days is advice. That's because it doesn't cost anything.

People who live on the land are frequently confronted with sorrows which little known to city dwellers. At least that is how it struck the farmer last week-end when the sharp crack of a rifle awoke the echoes in the valley, as a faithful 4-legged comrade passed by his woe and pain.

It was a poor reward for many years of valiant service, but alas! it was the only one to meet the situation.

Old Pinto, as he was known over a wide district, was the last link between us and the times when breaking the prairie sod was the order of the day. When 25 summers and winter had passed over his head, he was not permitted to work any more. This, however, did not meet with his approval.

Often, when he got a chance, he would slip through the gate and march alongside of his stablemates in his own proud manner.

During the cold weather of October he lost flesh in a most alarming way, and although given good care it soon became evident that his days were numbered.

One afternoon we found him down, totally paralyzed in the hind quarters.

Rather than see the brave and kindly old fellow suffer any more, he was given a swift and merciful ending.

Some people will probably smile at the old farmer's idea of Paradise, but

"How's Business?"

There are surface indications of a slight slowing up in business activity," says Canadian Business for February. "In addition, it is reasonable to expect readjustments as tariff changes alter trade channels, as budget balancing causes a certain amount of deflation and as other near-term influences exercise their pull. Nevertheless, there is nothing to indicate any change in the direction of the tide of business recovery."

Industry

"Canada's three basic industries—wheat, mining and newsprint—also sweeping the country forward. And in view of the political uncertainty in the United States, it should be noted that only one of these three major industries is primarily influenced by conditions across the border, while our other two basic industries tend to benefit from the unfortunate war scares which are griping European countries."

Foreign Trade

"Briefing our foreign trade figures," the article continues, "it is possible to see more clearly than before the driving force of revival. At the beginning of 1935 total international trade (all countries) was at the lowest point of the depression. Canada's trade, however, had gained 20 per cent from the low and during 1935 added another 10 per cent to its previous advance with only a fractional improvement registered in other countries. Wheat and minerals should be in keen demand during the first half, at least, of 1936."

Building

"In residential building there is a substantial gap to be closed. Normally, for every hundred marriages in Canada there are 27 new buildings erected. During the past four years, there have been only 14 new residences built for every hundred couples who have faced the altar. Therefore, to make good the deficiency, residential building should be twice normal for the next four years."

Commodity Prices

"Wholesale prices are about 2 per cent higher than last year. The rise during the past 12 months has been scarcely perceptible—and the most forecasts of an advancing price level show no concrete signs of being fulfilled."

Car Loadings

"The betterment in the railway business last year was slight. Freight car loadings were up less than 2 per cent, and although gross revenues showed some improvement, there was little change in the combined net operating revenues of the two roads."

FOUR MISTAKES

A man struck a match to see if the gasoline tank in his automobile was empty. It wasn't.

A man patted a strange bull dog on the head to see if it was affectionate. It wasn't.

A man opened his car to see if he could beat the train to the crossing. He couldn't.

A man cut out his advertising to see if he could save money. He didn't.

When his own turn comes to cross the Great Divide, he'll go forth with the hope of meeting truly flegged pals of the long ago.

Correction

Dear Sir:—

In last week's edition it was stated that the Bassano Red Devils hockey team defeated Cluny team 10-4. I beg to inform you that it was not Cluny they played but the Rolly Land team. Furthermore, the Cluny team played Rolly Land today, January 29, and defeated them 6-0. I might add that our boys played with only one forward line and one sub.

Yours truly,
G. V. Newell (Mgr.), Cluny.

Could Take His Time

For years he had been unpecked, but at last the wren turned. One morning he said to his wife:

"My dear, I had a queer dream last night—that some man was running off with you."

"Indeed," replied his wife, "and what did you say to him?"

"I just ask him why he was running."

How What?

A little city boy who had been to the country was describing to another boy the pig he had seen.

"It was in a pen," he said, "and it was afraid of the little pigs. They would chase the big pig around the pen and after he fell down with exhaustion the little pigs pounced upon the big pig and ate the buttons off his vest."

No Shortage Natural Gas

Thousands of millions of cubic feet of natural gas in southwestern Ontario as a result of the past year's well drilling operations, and the danger of shortage of supply that faced the consumers two years ago has been removed. Many cities, towns, and rural communities in this section of Ontario use natural gas for cooking and heating purposes. The City of London, formerly a user of artificial gas, is the latest addition to the list. Its supply being obtained by a pipeline from the Dawn field in Lambton county, fifty miles distant. The gas producing beds are located across the entire southwestern part of the province, from the Niagara peninsula to Lake St. Clair, but the output is especially large in the Lambton-Kent and Welland-Haldimand areas. The value of Ontario's natural gas output is close to $5,000,000 annually.

During the 1935 field season the Canadian department of mines made surveys to determine the natural gas and petroleum potentialities of several localities in Ontario, embracing an area of 9,000 square miles. Until recently all the natural gas produced came from porous rocks of high structure, but in recent drilling operations it has been obtained from long narrow bands of low structure rocks. These are presumably situated along faults where a secondary porosity has been developed, and the discovery of these productive structures considerably increases the probable gas reserves.

Under 5 Sovereigns

There are probably about 75 people in Ontario and 150 in all Canada who have lived under five British sovereigns: William IV, who was succeeded by Victoria in 1837; Victoria, Edward VII, George V and now Edward VIII. This number of people were 59 years or over at the last census, and presumably a like number are at that age today.—Toronto Star.

Corporation executives vie with movie stars for listing of six-figure incomes dwarfing that of the president of the United States. Strangely, some of the nation's richest men are shown to be receiving a comparatively modest annual stipend.

The movie incomes reported included: Marlene Dietrich, $145,000; Charlie Chaplin, $141,000; Mary Pickford, $52,750; Richard Arden, $57,444.64; Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, $154,646; George Bancroft, $15,164.62; Joan Bennett, $15,979.16; Gary Cooper, $135,687.70; W. SCOUTING . . . What It Is and Does

The Boy Scout's Promise—Before becoming a Scout, a boy, in the presence of a Scoutmaster and other Scouts, takes this pledge: On my honour, I promise that I will do my best—

To do my duty to God, and the King; To help other people at all times.

To obey the Scout Law.

"On my honour" . . . this is the conventional Scout motto. We are properly led, ninety-nine per cent of the boys try their best to live up to it with all its far-reaching results in character-making during the character-shaping years of a boy's life. If you give him a task to do, he will do it to the best of his ability. He is on his honour, as a Scout.

The Scout Law is Practical

The practical aspect of Scouting will be seen in its Law. Of its ten sections, the one most evidently practical is made frequently emphasized. This is the "Good Turn to Someone Every Day." The other nine in this Code of Honour "require" the Scout to be Trustworthy, Loyal, Friendly, Courteous, Kind to Animals, Obedient, Cheerful, Helpful, and, last but by no means of least importance, Clean in Thought, Word and Deed.

May Discover a Boy's Life Work In many many ways Scouting discovers to the boy his life's vocation. When a Second Class Scout may begin working for the first six of a long series of Proficiency Badges.

As he goes on with his life he acquires an elementary but practical knowledge of such subjects as Surveying, Gardening, Bookbinding, Prospecting, Plumbing, Telegraphing, Wireless, Music, Photography, Dairying, Farming, Mining, Metal Working, etc.

Results for Individual Boy The difficult boy develops initiative and self-confidence.

The selfish boy becomes thoughtful for others—through the "Good Turn Every Day."

The boy of wealthy parents and the poor boy develop their common ground and worth.

The disrespectful boy learns respect and courtesy.

The over-confident, self-assertive or overbearing boy adjusts himself to others' rights.

The city boy acquires a real knowledge of Nature's Lore and Woodcraft—with all its benefits to health and mind.

Scouting and the Church Scouting is strictly non-sectarian in principle and character. Its program however may be readily used as a supplementary to that of any church or other religious body. A large percentage of Scout Troops are connected with churches, these being of all denominations.

Scouting Benefit to Community Obviously anything that benefits a boy—the future citizen of a community—benefits that community. The Boy Scouts Association therefore appeals to the community at large to rally to its support in its effort to make this great, worthwhile, citizenship-training program available to still more boys. Your good will and your dollars and cents will help!

A GREAT GENTLEMAN

When I first knew him, he was plain John Buchan, writing the best scotch novels since Robert Louis Stevenson.

Then, in 1913, he was Col. John Buchan of the British wartime press bureau, shrewd, kindly, and deft, handling a bunch of rampaging American correspondents as gently as though they were so many new-laid eggs and he, personally, had laid every last one of them.

When he became Sir John Buchan, a lot of us said: "Well, he earned his honors, but no title ever can swell that Scot's head."

Now, at Ottawa, the flags fly and the cannon roar for Baron Tweedsmuir, governor-general of our noble neighbor nation to the north, but, if his lordship doesn't mind, I'd like, personally, to go on thinking of him as my friend, John Buchan, a very great gentleman.

They'll like him up there, we're going to like him down here. And, if any of you Canadians has any doubt as to his diversified talents, wait till you see him casting a trout fly across a likely pool.—Irvin S. Cobb.

Intimate Door Open Day of Mine Disaster

Witness at Coalfield Injury Makes Statement Which May Affect Issue

LETHBRIDGE.—That the door into the main entry of the Coalfield mine had been left open contrary to regulations, and that this may have prevented proper circulation of air during the workings, was the statement of John Hamann, one of the survivors of the December 9 explosion in the colliery, at the opening of the judicial inquiry Monday before Justice Lunan.

John Thompson, pit boss, on the other hand said he inspected the mine and found the circulation quite normal.—Lethbridge Herald.

Work faithfully eight hours a day and you won't have any worry. In time you may become the boss and have twelve hours a day and have all the worry.

RESERVE JUDGMENT OTTAWA.—The supreme court today (Feb. 3) reserved judgment in the reference concerning the validity of the federal unemployment insurance law.

New Brunswick and Quebec lined up against the bill. The Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta representatives made no submissions which was considered tantamount to admission the statute was valid.

TARS DRAW COFFIN

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Bluejeans of the Royal Navy drew King George's coffin from Westminster Hall to the railway station and from St. George's chapel following out a custom which arose from an unfortunate incident at the funeral of Queen Victoria in 1901.

On that occasion the horses attached to the gun carriage became restless and it was feared the funeral car would overturn. On the spur of the moment the horses were removed and naval ratings, forming the guard of honour, proceeded to draw the carriage with ropes.

The custom thus created was followed at the funeral of King Edward VII.—Calgary Herald.

Gem

GEM, Feb. 4.—The thermometer in Gem, we believe, got so used to registering sub-zero temperatures that it is impossible for them to change.
